WESTERLY ELKS' LODGE OF SORROW

Impressive Memorial Service Executed Sunday Afternoon—Address by Hon. J. Stacey Brown—Order to Remove Pawcatuck Postmaster—Death of Mrs. Emma C. Moulton—Military Matters.

The annual memorial services of the Western Elks lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, were held Sunday afternoon in Elven opera house, which was filled by the Elks and their friends, among them being a number from Stonington and Mystic. After the orchestral selections under the direction of Charles E. Redford, the ceremonies were formally opened according to the ritual by the officers of the lodge, which included the reading of the list of the dead, as follows: Nathaniel W. Main, Horace Burrill, N. Thompson, Milton A. Young, Joseph Graf and Joseph C. Moore. A quartette composed of Messrs. Clancy, St. Onge, McTurk and Coleman sang the vacant chair, which was followed by the singing of O Holy Father by Martin Spellman and Mrs. M. F. Driscoll and a tenor solo by James Moore.

The memorial address was delivered by Hon. J. Stacey Brown of Newport, city solicitor and member of the general assembly, which was a masterly and eloquent effort.

Miss Anita Arliss, who has been playing an engagement at a local playhouse and who is the daughter of an Elk in the west, sang two soprano solos with exquisite effect. My Rosary and Nocturne by God's Grace.

Then followed a bass solo, Pro Peccatis, from Rossini's Stabat Mater, by Thomas V. Clancy; baritone solo, Light and Darkness, by Wilton Blackburn; a tenor solo, Thy Will Be Done, Marsden, by Martin H. Spellman; and the singing of Chantry by Messrs. Clancy, St. Onge, McTurk and Coleman.

The formal closing exercises by the Elks included the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the impressive exercises were brought to a close by the benediction given by Rev. William F. Williams, pastor of Christ Episcopal church.

The officers of the lodge were: James H. O'Connell, exalted ruler; James H. Mahoney, esteemed leading knight; Martin H. Spellman, esteemed knight; Robert E. L. Mason, esteemed knight; Joseph L. Lenihan, secretary; John B. Johns, treasurer; Daniel J. Whalen, Tyler; Harry W. Robinson, exquire; Louis E. Barbour, chaplain; Eugene Driscoll, inside guard; Albert G. Martin, John A. Farrell, Elvin H. Chesbro, trustees; Thomas Gouley, Augustine T. L. Ledwith, Oliver H. Williams, Fred G. Harwell, George W. Harwell, Harry H. Robinson, Cornelius J. Farrell, Louis E. Barbour, past exalted rulers.

The memorial committee is composed of John H. O'Connell, George H. Bray, Harry H. Robinson, Joseph L. Lenihan, A. T. L. Ledwith, Oliver H. Williams and Louis E. Barbour, and the reception committee of John L. May, David Mackay, Michael H. Scanlon, A. T. L. Ledwith, William H. Ledward, John Catto, Joseph L. Twomey, Joseph T. Murphy, Charles H. Cowan and Daniel J. Whalen.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has announced that Postmaster Barclay of Pawcatuck is to be removed and has named Congressman Capron as his successor. The removal is based upon the general unfitness of the present incumbent. Senators Aldrich and Wetmore have requested the postmaster general to take action in the appointment of a successor to Postmaster Barclay until a more thorough investigation is made of the charges preferred against him, which emanated from democratic sources, mainly from ex-Governor Hiram, who publicly declared that Mr. Barclay was a thief and had used public office for personal gain and that he, Hiram, was interested in politics than in the performance of his duty as postmaster.

Congressman Capron says that he has done nothing toward naming a successor to Mr. Barclay and will hold the matter up until he can find more about the circumstances and get advice from various sources. He said that he had invited Charles H. Pendleton of Westerly, postoffice inspector, to meet him for a discussion of the matter. Inspector Pendleton said that he had not heard from Congressman Capron, but would be pleased to meet him and talk the matter over. He said he had not heard from Congressman Capron for a long time and it was not upon his recommendation that Barclay was to be removed.

The election to fill the vacancy in the First artillery district, caused by the resignation of Lieut. Col. Charles H. Ledward of Westerly, will take place in the Providence armory Tuesday evening. Major Matteson is the only candidate and will undoubtedly be elected unanimously. This will cause a vacancy in the grade of major, and this will be filled on the same night. The only candidate mentioned for the place is Capt. Archie H. Harden of the Seventh company, and it is probable that some course will be followed in his case.

Major A. H. Johnson is the senior major of the First district, but he has stepped aside for Major Matteson. The latter is now engaged in business in New York and will probably retire in the near future. From his long term of service as a commissioned officer in the Rhode Island National guard, together with his Spanish-American war service, he is eligible to retire as a full colonel. In the case of Johnson, that Major Johnson will be promoted to be lieutenant colonel.

If Captain Harden is elected major, Governor Fitch will order an election in the Seventh company.

Lieutenant Colonel Warfield, assistant adjutant general of the national guard, received on Friday the cup offered by him as a trophy for the company that shot in the state competition last fall and will present it to the winning team Monday night. It was won by the headquarters team of the First district. The cup is of old copper and silver, gold lined, and stands fifteen inches high.

The Wakefield Mill company, recently incorporated, will take the deed of the Wakefield mill property from the Wakefield Manufacturing company, which will then take charge of the business. Forrest C. Patterson of Bristol, one of the incorporators, is to be superintendent. The other incorporators, all young New York men, are William J. Taylor, Frank W. Austin, Richard Leslie Brown, Arthur C. Austin and J. W. Kendrick. The company will continue to manufacture woolen fabrics and, if business warrants, the size of the plant will be increased.

The Wakefield Manufacturing company purchased the mill some years ago from the Rodman Manufacturing company. The owners are nearly all South Kingston business men.

The Rhode Island state returning board, of which Councilman C. Clarence Maxson of Westerly is a member, is still engaged in counting the ballots cast in the November election. The board has announced that the town of Westerly re-elected Senator Louis W. Arnold by 492 plurality over Arthur Briggs, his democratic opponent. Joseph T. Murphy, republican, defeated Gordon Cottrell, democrat, by 208 votes in the November election. Communications accompanying the return from Westerly relieved the monotony of the count. John J. Dunn, clerk in the First district No. 1 Thomas W. Biddle protested to his name appearing on the official ballot as a candidate for senator, stating that he filed nomination papers as an independent candidate for the house of representatives. This statement was corroborated by the supervisors of the district.

The supervisors in the Second district, in their message to the returning board, said: "A more harmonious quiet meeting with a marked increase of intelligence on the part of the voters as marked by the ballots of the district, a decrease of service rendered to the voters by the supervisors at the booth."

The name of Thomas W. Biddle appeared for both senator and representative on ballots cast in the First district. He received 42 votes for senator and 7 for representative. But for the error in printing the official vote those 42 votes would undoubtedly have been credited to Senator Arnold, thereby making his plurality 534 instead of 492.

Local Laconics.
The improvements at the state armory in Westerly, including the installation of sixty-three steel lockers, have been completed at an expense of $2,500.

Contractor Bristow has completed the contract of building two miles of macadam on the Shore road from the Harris Chapman farm to the Watch Hill road.

William Smith, foreman at the plant of the Westerly Light and Power company, while oiling machinery Saturday had the small finger of the left hand broken, his right hand being caught in a finger coming in contact with the fast-revolving flywheel.

John B. Dixon, who was arrested in Westerly Feb. 15 for connection with William Trent in a holdup and robbery in Providence, has been permitted to enter a plea of nolo on a charge of larceny. He was sentenced to three months in jail. He has already been incarcerated for nine months.

The annual meeting of Narragansett lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F., was held Saturday evening and officers elected as follows: Benjamin P. Greene, noble grand; Lucius P. Burch, vice grand; Archie C. Thompson, secretary; R. Frank Greenman, financial secretary; Lafayette L. Foster, treasurer; Frederick Boulter, Selden M. Young, John H. Smith, and William J. Veal, Frederick G. Walton, Alvin S. Kenyon, hall committee.

In connection with the effort to banish the influence of secret societies in the Westerly High school, the members of the T. J. S. the girls' society, were summoned before the school authorities Friday evening at six o'clock to sign agreement to withdraw from the society, or to even promise not to solicit members among the girls of the school, and the members of the societies of boys. The girls were not suspended from school, but it is said that some action in the premises will be taken on Monday.

CLOSING DAY OF MISSIONARY INSTITUTE

lege graduate to church work. A systematic effort is being made by the missionary workers to bring the college graduates in touch with church work. This is resulting in many going to the mission field, a number of whom have come from Norwich, yet it is a fact with many that after completing a college course they give little or no thought to the opportunity for work in the field of the missionary as instructed.

It proved a branch of the day's conference which was particularly interesting.

Afternoon Service.
Following the children's meeting at Broadway church the devotional meeting was opened at 4:30 by Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, who led the service. The subject of the afternoon, was Giving and Spiritual Growth, and he spoke from the story of the talents, teaching that the larger view that giving means more than money consideration, he said that every power and talent one possesses should be devoted to the work of God. Our spiritual growth depends on what we are giving out. It is a spiritual paradox. In this story the man who gave away the ones who received, while the one who hoarded was the one who lost.

If we are not giving of our time, talents and strength, we are in danger of spiritual atrophy. If we can only offer in return the best we have for that which we have received the greater shall be our reward.

It is Christ's law of increasing returns that the more we give the more we receive. The transmission of the power and glory which Christ has given to him by the Father was Christ's mission, and we have our own example of giving to help others. If we do not give our lives, time and zeal in this work we shall not save it.

Securing the Contributions.
Rev. A. E. Legg took up the subject at this point and said: "We must have benevolent giving to keep those in the field doing the great work. There is something wrong in the teaching and work of the church unless some one has gone from the church to the mission field."

The motives which would lead men or women to contribute to missionary work includes gratitude to God, the need of the contributions in the field, the obligation to God, the desire to share with others, as an investment with its returns, the joy of giving and the satisfaction of service.

How to bring the motives to bear is the important point. Nine-tenths of the benevolence of the church is given by the tenth of the people. To reach all the people the appeal must give information about the need, the opportunity and the success of missionary work must be presented. There must be a pupil presentation, while literature, the study of stewardship, are also.

The methods of giving should be individual giving by the church members, members of the congregation, young people's society and the Sunday school. Regular contributions by committee work should be sought.

We must have the unit of giving for the pleasure. There should be a regularity in giving. The use of duplex envelopes, for weekly contributions, was suggested.

The necessity of overcoming the frequent appeals by a few strong appeals was emphasized and it was found that this was helped by the Duplex envelopes.

Evening Service.
At the Central Baptist church in the evening Rev. Joseph P. Cobb conducted the meeting.

Miss Katherine Freeman of the fellowship committee said that committee would work with those who have become interested in the movement, and carry out the inspiration gained. It has been felt that the interdenominational normal class with an efficient teacher would be best, and this it is hoped to form immediately. In February it is hoped to have a normal class of the new lines of work and thought that have been brought out. Many joined the class following the meeting.

The Church in the World Task.
The evening speaker was Harry W. Hicks, whose subject was The Church in the World Task, and he gave an excellent review of the work of the institute which had been considered.

He said: "Much of the inefficiency is due to the fact that we are slipped in our methods and activities of the church. The nature of the task of the church is to make Jesus Christ known, obeyed and loved, among the entire human race, regardless of race language or other forms of worship. This is not the education of the world, but education goes with it, being an accompaniment of evangelization and civilization. Education is being used as a means to end that native teachers may be raised up."

The methods to be employed in carrying out the task are many. There is a popular opinion that the work of the church in foreign lands is limited, depending on proselytizing and encroaching on other religions. The real achievement of the church cannot be understood without a glimpse of the mission field.

The message of Jesus Christ has to be preached so that the people can apply it. The spirit of Jesus Christ must enter the hearts of men.

Christians must bring justice into the social and moral conditions of all the countries. The politics of all countries is affected by Christianity, particularly so in Turkey and India. Methods of approach to individuals are being sought in order to teach the benefits of Christianity.

The Christian home has a wonderful influence in the transformation of the social life of the people.

Personal work is one of the greatest agencies. The missionary is sought in his district by hundreds to settle their difficulties and look after the needs of the people, but has been found to be pouring for the benefit of the people, and to bring them to the knowledge of Jesus Christ.

The evangelistic missionary is a necessity. Thousands of villages know nothing about Jesus Christ, save for a visit possibly once in fifteen years of a missionary. They have never heard and adequate presentation of Jesus Christ.

In order that all these people shall know Jesus Christ, it is for us to remember that the forces of the missionary must be multiplied.

The education, medical and industrial forces are all great assistants in the work of evangelizing the world. The evidence of the work of the human race that has been given to give the people the gospel of Jesus Christ can quickly be secured by a visit to the mission field.

You find no great discoveries or innovations in the unchristian lands, as you do here, or in those where the effects of the work have been felt. The variety is necessary for the introduction of the message with power to the individual.

Do we practice a type of Christianity worthy to be given to the whole world? There are many encouraging conditions in our churches today. We are living in an age when the foreign missionary societies are planning their campaigns together. There is a like co-operation in the home mission field. The home mission council which will put aside the waste going on in the missionary society, laying out the work and territory. The Federation of Churches has resulted in greater favor for missionary efforts. We can believe that the churches are going to give up sectarianism, though they may strengthen in denominationalism. Co-operation for the sake of efficiency is the feeling which is growing stronger every day. The assumption of denominational responsibility by denominations is another important factor.

By the gift to missions you enter into partnership with God and the missionaries in the working out of the kingdom of God. Every individual, church and denomination should have an individual missionary responsibility. The outstanding needs of our home work are: Knowledge of missions, Christian discipline and dedication of life to the service. A church doesn't measure up to its standard unless it gives its sons and daughters to the mission work for Jesus Christ at home or abroad. This will make the church equal to the task in which it is engaged.
